ABOUT

Kat, a real estate agent, has seemingly lived multiple lives for such a young age. She broke out on La Voz Venezuela at 11, and briefly had a moment of stardom – people would recognize her on the street. She moved to Los Angeles to keep the momentum going but didn't gain the traction she expected... so Kat slowed it down and decided to go to college instead. However, she's still looking for the right opportunity to get back in the game, as she's never lost her fire.

THE DETAILS

- ⦿ Kat's parents are from Venezuela. She fondly recalls visiting the country as a kid. She lived in several states as well as different parts of South America, which equipped her with an ability to cope with change from an early age.
- ⦿ Regardless of where she was, Kat would always sing. As early as 5-years-old, she would make up songs and cover her favorite artist, Adele. She even started a YouTube channel where she would post covers and vlog style videos.
- ⦿ Her first breakout performance was at 11, when she was on Venezuela's version of The Voice. She did local radio interviews afterwards and admits that she did feel famous – she would get stopped by strangers asking to take pictures all the time. With that in mind, she wanted to parlay that opportunity into a career in the US, so she moved to LA.
- ⦿ She moved to Los Angeles and quickly realized it wasn't the right time. Things slowed down musically and she wasn't singing as much as she'd hoped, so Kat took a break and decided to go to college. She is currently attending the University of Florida in Gainesville.
- ⦿ She made waves in her family by getting married young, and despite pushback from family, Kat has never been happier. She doesn't believe that there needs to be an exact timeline, and she knew she found her person right away.
- ⦿ With the money, Kat would not only invest the money in her career but in property. She wants to be a homeowner and the winnings would be the first step in securing a place she can call home permanently.
