ABOUT

Jaelynn grew up outside a military base in Killeen, Texas, in a military family. Her grandfathers and brother were in the Marines, and her dad served in the military for 20 years. She knew at a young age that it was never her path and found solace in singing and never looked back. Jaelynn moved around a lot and witnessed friends, who were also military brats, move frequently. She considers music the friend that never left. Feeling stuck in her small hometown, Jaelynn is seeking an opportunity to prove that she can make it in a big city. She's ready for the chance to show everyone back home what she's made of.

THE DETAILS

- Jaelynn spent her childhood singing and dancing whenever she could. While others were riding their bikes, Jaelynn was in her room recreating Michael Jackson music videos or putting on glitter, pretending to be Beyoncé. Her dad served in the military for 20 years, and they lived near one of the biggest army bases in the world. It was tough for her since all her friends were army brats who would move away every three years, but she always found comfort in music and knew she wanted to be a star.
- Like many kids, she grew up obsessed with boy bands and had all the posters on her wall to prove it. From the Jonas Brothers to One Direction to BTS, she loved the combination of music and choreography each brought.
- She sells apartments to make a living as a leasing agent, with the only drawbacks being when she gets yelled at for tenants not paying rent.
- In high school, Jaelynn was one of the only female members of her drumline, and she loved proving she could hang with the guys while also performing in front of the whole school.
- She has no vocal training or schooling, only a passion for singing and a gut instinct when something sounds right.
- Killeen, Texas, isn't known for much outside of its military base, and Jaelynn wants to prove that it's a hotbed for musical talent. It's a small town, so she's never known where to go or how to put herself out there to showcase all that she has to offer. She's ready to take a leap of faith and make her hometown proud on The One & Only."
