ABOUT

Daron grew up in the church and loved the live band that accompanied the sermon. He enjoyed it so much that he eventually joined the band, believing that a career as a musician was his path. But then he started singing, and knew that he could pair the piano with his voice and make magic happen. He's been hooked ever since and now sings at weddings on the weekends when he's not working real estate. While he's a late bloomer, Daron wants to prove that not everything has to be on a set timeline, and that he's more than made up for the years he didn't use his voice.

THE DETAILS

- ⌚ Daron grew up in Queens and was always around music. He was in orchestra in junior high school, and started playing piano by teaching himself on YouTube. At 16-years-old, he was hired as a musician at his family church – and didn't even start singing until he was 19-years-old.
- ⌚ He is a real estate agent to pay the bills and while it's not his dream job, it's brought him this far. Daron has always been sociable and believes his knowledge of New York and his interpersonal skills make him a great fit as a real estate agent.
- ⌚ Daron is a wedding singer on the weekends and has sang at over 500 weddings. He claims that nothing beats the rush of singing for hundreds of people.
- ⌚ His musical influences are Frank Ocean, Coldplay, Beyoncé, Kim Burrell and Brandy.
- ⌚ He hosts two open mics during the week and loves watching up-and-coming musical acts in New York work on their craft.
- ⌚ Daron has had the honor of performing at the Mecca of New York City – twice. He performed at Madison Square Garden during New York Knicks games, and is ready to run it back whenever they request him again.
- ⌚ With the winnings, Daron would give money to his mom so she can retire comfortably. She gave everything to her family, so Daron feels it's time that he paid her back for all her hard work and sacrifice.
